

PRODUCT RESERVE

Words: Taylor Boyd

Photos: Brandon Parrish

01. BURTON *The Throwback*02. DRAGON *NFX2*03. OUTDOOR TECH *Big Turtle Shell*04. CAMP CHEF Rainier Camper's Combo / 05. Redwood Portable Firepit

01.
Burton
The Throwback
| $129.95

burton.com

What is it that everyone wants after they've had a couple cool ones? To introduce a little risk into their life. And what's that, a snow pile? Grab the Throwback; it's time to show off.

02.
Dragon
NFX2
| $179.99

dragonalliance.com

Frameless is the new black. Actually, fuck that. Nothing will ever be the new black, but frameless goggles look sleek, provide seamless lens-changing capabilities and since they're available murdered out, lack of a frame and absence of color are not mutually exclusive.

03.
Outdoor Tech
Big Turtle Shell
| $199.95

outdoortechology.com

The Big Turtle Shell from Outdoor Tech is the XXL version of a Bluetooth speaker and its 7800 milliamps of rechargeable battery power will not only blast tunes at a wireless range of 32 feet, it will also charge your iPhone four times or your GoPro six. Until Outdoor Tech integrates a massage function, it's hard to think of much else you could ask for.

04. / 05.
Camp Chef
Rainier Camper's Combo | $153.00
Redwood Portable Firepit | $175.00

campchef.com

There is nothing worse than paying inflated resort prices for food. Oh wait, there is. It's getting back to your car after a backcountry mission feeling soggy and damp without anything hot to eat or drink. You can mitigate these problems in either scenario with flame — in the form of a stove/grill combo or a portable firepit from Camp Chef.

06. SAINT ARCHER Beer 07. SIDESURFERS Euro 08. YAKIMA SkyBox Lo Carbonite 09. JUSTIN'S Almond Butter Packets 10. YETI Tundra 45 11. BURTON Beeracuda

06.
Saint Archer Beer
| price varies

saintarcherbrewery.com

You have no shortage of options when it comes to beer, but we don't know of any other breweries with Pat Moore, Todd Richards, Eric Koston and Atiba Jefferson on their ambassador program, so might as well make it a Saint Archer.

07.
Sidesurfers Euro
| $15.00

sidesurfers.com

Sometime, let's say 50 years ago, brands started manufacturing sunglasses for mountaineers that blocked light reflecting off the snow. They aptly called these glacier shades. Then sometime, how about ten years ago, snowboarders on Mt. Hood's Palmer Glacier started putting stickers on the sides of their sunglasses to simulate these glacier shades — because well, they were on a glacier. John Murphy took this idea of DIY glacier shades and came up with Sidesurfers, which work better than two Pizza Party stickers.

08.
Yakima
SkyBox Lo Carbonite
| $539.00

yakima.com

What is the reason for having a truck? So you can put stuff in the back that you don't want inside. What is the reason for not having a truck? So you have more room inside. What is the compromise? A box, like this low-profile one from Yakima.

09.
Justin's
Almond Butter Packets
| $1.95

justins.com

As funny as you look sucking on a packet of almond butter, it's pretty convenient to have in your pocket when you get hungry, and we have yet to find any that compares with Justin's — or comes in a packet for that matter.

10.
Yeti Tundra 45
| $349.95

yeticoolers.com

Yeti coolers come with a price tag. Sure, they're certified bear-proof by the IGBC — that's the International Grizzly Bear Committee — but we're not especially worried about grizzlies stealing our lunch. What sold us is the fact that we put 20 pounds of ice in this thing a week ago and at least 15 pounds are still frozen! If you take your enjoyment of frosty beverages serious, a Yeti might be a worthy investment.

11.
Burton Beeracuda
| $19.95 - 29.95

burton.com

Take everything great about a six-pack: which is that you have six beers. Then eliminate everything that sucks about a six-pack: the cardboard that rips when it gets soggy, the fact that everyone knows you have beer and that one of your hands is occupied. What you get is the Beeracuda. If you want to conceal those six beers and keep your hands free, you need one of these.